Investment Manager's Comment

The stock markets reached new highs in September, still driven by the race to develop artificial intelligence. The pullback in our portfolio was correspondingly sharp, and we suffered significant losses. However, we see no reason to change our portfolio strategy. We hold primarily high-quality companies that have continued to grow strongly even amid the AI revolution of the past four years, but which are not favored by market participants. Consequently, the fund's positions remained unchanged during the reporting month.
